Jobs For Representatives

Each issue of the paper brings news from Frankfort that certain Representatives in the Legislature have been appointed to high salaried positions. These Representatives are those whose vote passed legislation demanded by the Administration.

When a Representative votes for legislation and then accepts a position under that legislation he, thereby is willing to be looked upon with suspicion.

When any law is an issue before the people and more than eighty out of the 100 Legislators are elected, pledged against it, and yet the Legislature passes that law than a deplorable condition exists in the State Government regardless of the merits of the law.

The Representatives influential in securing for themselves and their friends positions are those who have betrayed the people as a whole for the benefit of a few jobs for themselves or their friends.

The people in the long run get the kind of government they deserve. If they elect the type of man who will legislate against the great mass of people for the benefit of a few job hunters then they should not complain. The people over the state now know who will sell them out for a job. It is up to them whether or not such men will be approved or condemned.

A Representative out of a job who has received no favors, has proven himself an honest man. The Shelby News

FAMILY REUNION

Blaze, Ky. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Lewis was informally opened on Sunday, September 2, to the immediate families of Lewises and Blankenships. It has been a precedent for many years to gather at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Lewis that the family ties might be reunited as well as to again give the many sons, daughters, grandsons, and granddaughters an opportunity to enjoy the gracious hospitality which grandfather and grandmother extends to them.

There seems to be something about grandmother's cooking and grandfather's cheerful jokes and smiles that draws grandchildren closer and gives them memories never to be forgotten. Given the past took time to commemorate home ties in his verse and to remind his brother of the joyous times spent at the home of his grandparents. Yet some say that we are living in a new era when the family, ancient as it is, does not bind. We, younger generations, have been missing this graceful relationship that should exist between all families, not a few. This occasion should be a causal reminder of the great wealth in store for us back home where the outstretched hand and the lamp in the window beckons us to come. Such a hand that clasps and such golden rays from that old lamp, we will ever remember after we have once caught their meaning. Let us go back home and cheer that hand and refuel that old lamp. It will cheer them on; it will make them happier and at the same time we will again be given that good, invigorating attitude toward life which they are a living example. We cannot help being inspired by their lofty ideas and ideals which we have probably forgotten since we have been traveling life's highways alone. These are the things that we should get from a trip back home, and yet, how good mother's or grandmother's dinner is, we'll never be able to tell until after they have passed far from us. Nor can we estimate the sincerity of father or grandfather's smile which says welcome to you my own dear children.

Such were the relationships enjoyed in the reunion of these families at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Lewis at Blaze.

Those to whom welcome was extended were: Mr. and Mrs. Willie Lewis, son Ivan daughter Pauline; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Lewis, son Kenneth, daughter Anna Corine; Mr. and Mrs. Waverlin Lewis, sons Frederick and Jackie, daughter Lorraine; Mr. and Mrs. John Bishop, daughter Aleene; Mr. and Mrs. Will Fingett, sons Norman, Quintin, Gerald, and Byron, daughter Mona Gay; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Blankenship, son Elmer Jr., daughter Ruth Elaine of Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. Minnie Blankenship Moore, Blairs Mills; Mrs. Walter Callahan, of Chicago, Ill.; Miss Mary Blankenship; Mrs. Lola Wadkins; Mrs. Nannie Blankenship, of Blairs Mills; Mrs. Alene Blankenship and son Junior; Mrs. Mose Bishop, daughter Cella; Miss Reva Lewis; and Mack Moore of Blairs Mills.

Auto Drivers Should Know

The new automobile drivers' license requires that each person receiving a driver's license testify before a notary public that he is familiar with the automobile laws of the state.

Many feel that they have a cursory knowledge of such laws but they are not fully familiar with the main detail.

Glen Weinman, secretary of the Blue Grass Automobile Club presents a digest of the motor regulatory acts pertaining to the operation of vehicles on the public highways. The following is a summary of those laws as digested by Mr. Weinman:

1. All cars shall be equipped with one red tail lamp which is visible 50 feet, also two headlights which are of sufficient power to reveal objects clearly 200 feet ahead.
2. It is unlawful for any person to operate a motor vehicle on the streets and highways upon which the brakes are defective or out of order.
3. No person shall operate a vehicle on the highways upon which the steering device is defective or out of order.
4. Every automobile shall be equipped with a horn or sound device being sufficiently loud under ordinary conditions to warn approach of such vehicle to pedestrians and other vehicles. It shall be unlawful to sound horn unnecessarily.
5. Every operator of a motor vehicle shall operate such vehicle in a careful manner with due regard for the safety and convenience of pedestrians.
6. Two vehicles passing or about to pass each other in opposite direction shall have the right of way and no other vehicles to the rear of such two shall pass or attempt to pass such vehicle.
7. Except where otherwise directed by regulation or by traffic officer, the operator of a vehicle shall yield the right of way to a vehicle approaching from the right unless such vehicle is further from the point of intersection of their paths than the first named vehicle.

8. Police, fire apparatus and ambulances in all cases shall have the right of way.
9. In overtaking vehicles proceeding in the same direction, the operator shall sound horn and pass on the left and shall not drive to the right until reasonably clear.
10. It is the duty of the operator of the vehicle about to be overtaken and passed to give way to the right in favor of the overtaking vehicle upon suitable and audible signal.
11. When turning to the right at an intersection, the vehicle shall keep to the right of center and in turning to the left shall keep to the left of center, but shall keep as far as possible to the right and still pass to the left of center.
12. The operator of a slow moving vehicle shall keep as far as possible to the right boundary to allow other vehicles moving at high rate of speed to pass freely on the left.
13. Operators in approaching a curve or obstruction to the view shall have car under full control and shall sound horn of his approach.
14. It shall be unlawful for any operator to leave standing on any portion of the public highways for the purpose of repairing vehicle or discharging passengers.
15. Every person operating a vehicle on the highway before turning, stopping or changing the course shall first give proper arm signal: To turn right: Extending arm upwardly at an angle of 45 degrees. To turn left: Point in direction of turn. To stop: Extend arm outward and downward.
16. Upon unobstructed highways, a speed in excess of 40 miles an hour shall be prima facie evidence of unreasonable and improper driving.
17. It is the duty of any operator involved in an accident to stop and ascertain the extent of injury and lend all possible aid and assist any persons injured to medical aid.

ABC Of Safety

The cause of safety has a very simple and important A. B. C. The letters mean—Always Be Careful.

That motto should govern conduct in every home, in every place of business and especially in every automobile. Because it is constantly violated, thousands of people die needlessly each year 33,000 of them in motor accidents alone, and property damage runs into the billions. In no other nation do accidents take so great a toll.

There is nothing difficult about "playing safe." The main thing to remember is to never take a needless chance—never do anything unnecessarily that might lead to injury. Automobile drivers, for example, can probably pass cars on curves nine hundred and ninety-nine times without anything happening. On the thousandth time he may kill and maim and injure. The element of risk is always there—a little thought will reduce it to a minimum.

There is no greater and more absolute waste than that caused by accidents. No kind of waste possesses less justification—the unavoidable accident is so rare as to be almost non-existent. Nearly every accident is caused because someone was reckless, careless, ignorant. Remember the A. B. C. of safety and you will be doing your part to eliminate hazards that menace every citizen.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and gratitude to our many friends for their kind help and comforting words during the grievous loss of our dear husband and father, Dr. James F. Smith. Especially do we wish to thank Doc Atkins for so perfectly carrying out our dear one's request. We are also grateful to the ministers. Each and every one of you will be held dear to our memories. Mrs. James F. Smith and Family.

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

A statement showing the amount of monies received and the particular items for which this money was spent for the year 1933 by the County Treasurer is now being prepared and will be printed in an early issue of this paper. A report of the school finances and the town of West Liberty will follow in due course. It will be well to preserve the paper in which these statements appear for future reference.

Brazil Nuts Add Variety to Menu

By Caroline B. King
Home Economics and Culinary Authority

WHAT a lot of the good things we have to eat we owe to those sturdy old sea captains who scouted over the seas and into foreign countries looking for appetizing edibles for everyone who appreciates fine eating. Long, long ago, they began their missionary work of bringing back delicacies to enrich our tables. Among the importations from South America came the Brazil nut, with its delicious flavor, and so rich in all the necessary food qualities, that we are now using it more and more in modern cookery, not only as a garnish but as a main ingredient to add distinction to our meals.

Brazil nuts are especially useful in all kinds of cookery. They are a distinct addition to salads, desserts and sweetmeats. They may also be salted, roasted, deviled and prepared in several ways to serve as hors d'oeuvres and appetizers. Added to these uses, the Brazil nut because of its valuable food properties makes a most satisfactory meat substitute and may be used in combination with other foods as the piece de resistance for many a warm weather meal. For instance try the following recipes:

Sweet Potato and Brazil Nut Croquettes (illustrated above): Boil and mash well, enough sweet potatoes to make 2 cupsful, add 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1 tablespoonful of butter, 1 beaten egg and 1/4 cupful of chopped Brazil nuts. Moisten slightly with cream or milk, form into croquettes, roll in beaten egg, then in fine crumbs and place in a hot oven to brown. If preferred, these croquettes may be molded into the shape of pears, dipped in egg and crumbs and fried in deep boiling fat. Garnish with parsley, using pieces of the stalks for stems, and serve very hot.

Brazilian Loaf: Chop or grind fine enough Brazil nuts to make 1 cupful, add 2 cupsful of soft bread crumbs, 1/2 cupful of finely chopped celery, 1/4 cupful of shredded green pepper, 1 tablespoonful of minced parsley, 1 cupful of cold mashed potatoes, and 2 well-beaten eggs, season with 1 teaspoonful of salt, 1/4 teaspoonful each of pepper and paprika, mix all well, make into a loaf, place in a greased pan and bake 35 to 40 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce or cream sauce.

Salted Brazil Nuts are a happy accompaniment to any meal. Prepared in the following way they are delicious and free from the usual greasiness of salted nuts. Roast shelled Brazil nuts in the oven until brown, then rub between towels to remove the skin, roll in un-beaten egg white, spread on a pan and sprinkle lightly with salt. Place in a cool oven to dry.

FARMERS' COLUMN

THE FARM AND HOME

School hats should be of simple design, in accord with fall fashion trends and of substantial material. They should match or harmonize with the coat; if of the same material, an ensemble effect results. Sports hats are particularly desirable.

In buying hosiery, shades that go well with school and street costumes should be selected, and two pairs of each kind bought. New hose should be washed before using, and also every time they are worn as soon after removing as possible. Thin places or holes should be mended as soon as they appear, with thread that exactly matches the shade of the hose.

Storage of fruit and vegetables require careful attention to temperature, humidity and ventilation. "Warm" vegetables, squashes, cushaws and sweet potatoes, need a temperature of 50 degrees; "cool" ones, turnips, beets, carrots, cabbage and potatoes, should be kept at 34 to 38 degrees. Storage space for all vegetables should be well ventilated to prevent sweating and rotting.

Drying, use of home preservatives and canning are ways of preventing spoilage of food products. In drying, remove sufficient water so that bacteria, yeasts and molds cannot cause changes. Harmless home preservatives such as sugar salt vinegar or spices check the spoilage process while canning destroys harmful organisms by heat and prevents further entrance.

Kentucky Needs More Grass

A plea to farmers to sow grass this fall as a combined feed-producing and soil saving crop is made by Dr. Ed N. Ferguson of the College of Agriculture University of Kentucky. "Because of the economic and soil agricultural experiment station main production on more of the farm acreage is a matter of concern to all people of Kentucky," he says. He believes grass is more profitable than most crops especially if used for pasture, and is the most effective crop for controlling soil erosion and leaching.

That good grass can be produced in any part of the state has been demonstrated on the soil fields which the Agricultural Experiment Station maintains in various regions. In fact it appears that sods equal to those in central Kentucky are possible in southern and western counties and in parts of the mountains.

It does not pay, however, to try to grow grass on poor soils. The use of lime and phosphate are necessary outside of Bluegrass region, and lime is often profitable even in Bluegrass counties. Two to four tons of limestone and 300 to 500 pounds of 20 percent phosphate to the acre are recommended for most areas outside the Bluegrass, and one to two tons of limestone for Bluegrass counties.

Dr. Ferguson believes seeding should be heavier than is ordinarily practiced. He recommends a minimum of 15 lbs. of bluegrass, 8 pounds of redtop, 15 pounds of timothy, and 25 pounds of orchard grass for pasture or 15 pounds for hay. These rates are for the sowing of only grass; the amount should be reduced in mixtures.

With the exception of orchard grass, these grasses may be sowed up to October 1 in most of the state.

Robinson Harvest Festival

Judge Edward C. O'Rear of Frankfort will be the principal speaker at the ninth annual Robinson Harvest Festival to be held September 27-28 under the auspices of the Robinson Agricultural Experiment Substation at Quicksand Breathitt county.

The exhibits will be open to all Eastern Kentucky and will include field crops, vegetable, fruits, hogs, poultry, potatoes, flowers, baked foods, canned foods, clothing, house furnishings, school displays home-made and miscellaneous articles and a complete 4-H club department.

The educational feature of the program has been enlarged this year, and will include inspections of the Experiment Substation crops and livestock together with lectures on various phases of farm production.

Members of the staff at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington: Ben E. Niles secretary of the Kentucky State Horticultural Society, and Eastern Kentucky county agents will assist in the educational program.

Persons interested in making exhibits should see their county agricultural agent or county home demonstration agent.

Growers Express Approval

Two hundred burley tobacco committeemen from 66 counties, meeting at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington, told Dr. J. B. Hutson, chief of the tobacco section of the AAA, that they believe burley growers generally are satisfied with government control of production and want the program continued. They would make no change in the provisions of the present contract or in the benefit payments.

The growers expressed apprehension of any modification of the control program or any possibility of its discontinuance. Release of growers, they felt, might result in greatly increased acreages and demoralization of markets.

Representatives of Missouri and Indiana growers at the meeting were of the same opinion as the Kentucky growers, and expressed their cooperation in the adjustment program. The committeemen of the burley counties who are charged with the local administration of the adjustment program were called together to discuss compliance measures and other problems with Dr. Hutson.

SHOULD SHARE FATE

Common sense says a police captain in Chicago would share the guilt of robbery and murder if, for $1,000 a week, he shielded John Dillinger while the late Public Enemy No. 1 was a fugitive. Under a broad construction, that may also be the intent and effect of the law on compounded felonies.

The charge that Dillinger was protected at this rate is publicly made by C. Roy Hansen, a former Chicago prosecutor. Proving up the charge and bringing a successful prosecution would be as large a service as was the killing of Dillinger toward ridding society of the continuing threats while the most dangerous criminals are at large.

Dillinger, captured alive, would have been sent to the electric chair. A police captain or policemen, caught taking money for protecting him while in hiding, ought to be sent to the electric chair. ASHLAND INDEPENDENT

Cattle Guide to Crop Adjustment

Retirement of Land Demands Plans to Use Grain and Forage Yields.

By R. R. Snapp, Associate Chief in Beef

Paul H. Hunsicker, University of Illinois—WNU Service.
Retirement of some 1,500,000 acres of corn and wheat land from normal production under the AAA programs is likely to be successful only if live stock numbers are adjusted to the new levels of grain and forage production.

Cattle constitute a "lock washer" which can be used to hold steady and give permanence to many adjustments which may be made in agricultural practices.

Farmers with cattle will quickly see the advantages to be gained by raising less grain and more forage and pasture, since this new supply of forage can be used effectively in beef production. Consequently, changes made by such farmers in their cropping systems will be relatively permanent. On the other hand, farmers without cattle will find their hay and pasture crops even more difficult to dispose of at remunerative prices than were their former surpluses of corn and wheat.

Cattle contribute further to the success of the government's adjustment programs through the aid which they furnish in maintaining the fertility of high-grade land. If marginal and sub-marginal land is entirely removed from cultivation, it will be imperative that the land used for the growing of harvested crops be maintained in a high state of fertility. For this purpose, cattle manure has no equal.

Furthermore, beef cattle aid in the elimination of burdensome surpluses through their ability to convert a million bushels of corn into five million pounds of beef. The million bushels of corn in its natural state would supply the total cereal needs of 800,000 people for an entire year, while the 5,000,000 pounds of beef will suffice only for 100,000 persons a year at the present scale of beef consumption.

Small fluctuations in the corn, barley and oat crops, amounting to a few million bushels either way, have but slight effect on the grain market so long as there are sufficient cattle in the country to permit the utilization of the surpluses, or to permit the release of sufficient grain to make good the deficit by the varying number of cattle given a grain feed. Without sufficient cattle to furnish this safety factor, relatively small fluctuations in the grain crops may have a great influence on market prices.

Concrete Silos Can Be Put Into Good Condition

Concrete silos which have softened and sloughed off on the inside due to the use of too little cement or to mistakes in mixing or handling the concrete, can be repaired by chipping off the defective material with hammer and cold chisel, soaking the concrete thoroughly several times, crushing with a cream-like grouting of cement and water, then plastering with rich cement mortar.

If the defective concrete extends clear through the silo walls, says a writer in the Montreal Herald, the entire wall can be replaced by cutting out a section at a time and replacing it with good material. When these have set thoroughly, the remaining parts can be replaced in the same way.

Leakage of air through silo walls is a common cause of moldy silage. Hollow tile, concrete block and concrete stave silos are often coated with a cement and water wash with the idea of stopping such air leaks; but this does little good, since any cracks will open up again as soon as the pressure comes on the walls. What is needed is a more elastic coating, which will stretch slightly.

Mosquitoes on Farms

A common source of mosquitoes on farms is ponds which provide drinking water for live stock. Obviously, it is inadvisable to treat these ponds with poisonous substances, kerosene, or other material which will impart a taste to the water which would be retarding to live stock, and draw them of course is also out of the question. If such ponds are made deep enough so that they will not dry up frequently during summer fish can be introduced which will feed on the larvae of mosquitoes.

Rye Hay

Rye hay has about the same feeding value as oats hay, except that it does not contain quite as much digestible protein. The rye should be cut while the grain is in the early milk stage, at which time the stems and leaves may be cured to a bright, dust-free hay of good quality. At that time the awns or heads have not hardened as to become objectionable. This hay may be fed to live stock as any other cereal hay.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Better Pastures

The heretofore careless attitude taken by many farmers toward their pasture land is to be changed, if the Department of Agriculture has its way. Efforts will be made to convince the live stock raiser and the general farmer that by proper care in the type of grass planted in pasture a return which will more than compensate for the trouble will be obtained. The usual pasture land on American farms is the "lost world" land, which can be used for no other purpose with any success.

BOB JONES' COMMENTS

Anybody can start a religion. It doesn't take any sense or personality, and strange to say, when a religion starts somebody will swallow it. All a person has to do is to think up some fool idea, call on some rich widow and get some money and start the program.

Most of the religions which are known as false religions by orthodox leaders were either started by a woman or have been kept alive by women. The apostle Paul teaches clearly that God does not suffer a woman to teach or usurp authority over a man. The word "teach" does not mean to teach a Sunday School class or to teach the Bible. Paul is talking about about headship. The position of headship in religion does not belong to woman. It belongs to man. That is what the Bible teaches. Woman has her place in religion but her place is not at the head. Woman is never at her best in the position of headship. She is at her best when she stays where God meant her to stay.

The normal place for the normal woman is in the home. We are living, of course, in an abnormal world and all of our conditions are abnormal. But under normal conditions God means for women to stay in their homes and rear children and be good wives and good mothers. Men can preach, but men can't nurse babies. Men can be governors, but men's laps were never made to hold little children certainly not long at a time. God didn't make men and women alike and no sort of social conditions can ever turn a woman into a man and a man into a woman. Man hasn't a sphere and woman hasn't a sphere. Man is a hemisphere and woman is a hemisphere.

A PERFECT DAY

One of the most interesting events in our county this season was the return of the McDermott sisters to the county after an absence of about fifty years. They left with their parents when mere school girls and returned to visit their old neighbors and friends, the Cox family.

There were three of the McDermott girls; viz., Mrs. Newton Johnson, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Rosa M. Jones of Owingsville; Mrs. James Horton accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Clarence Williams and son Ed Williams of Mt. Sterling; Mrs. H. O. Irwin accompanied by her daughter, Miss Anna Flora of Ashland.

While visiting Miss Florence Cox at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cox and two children, Frieda and Lewis at Pomp, it was decided to have a get-together meeting Sunday, Sept. 2, in the old home now occupied by Ben Cox and family and well remembered by the McDermott girls, as the "happy playing ground" with Miss Florence Cox and her sister now Mrs. Jennie Nickell at Hazel Green.

The following relatives of the Cox family were present: Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Kendall, Hazel Green; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Nickell and little daughter, Imogene, West Liberty; Mrs. Lou Cox and daughters, Misses Mary Jane, Floris and Helen Jean, West Liberty; and Mrs. Sam Caskey, Wrigley.

Every one arrived Sunday morning with well filled baskets. Of course it was a chicken dinner and everything that could be thought of as belonging to a chicken dinner. It was a feast. Everything was arranged on a long table and served cafeteria style. There were all kinds of cakes from the black and red chocolates to the angel food cake. The ice cream was in white cakes decorated in pink and green.

After dinner, there was much strolling about over the old place and much reminiscence. The McDermotts gathered flowers, seeds and shrubs to take home.

The chief entertainer was Lewis, the little five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cox. He has just entered school and has never studied music, but is a most wonderful musician. He plays well any song he has heard, carrying the parts with both hands. It is his parents' ambition to give him a musical education and we predict for him a bright and useful future.

Could there be a happier ending to a Perfect Day?

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. King and children, of Grayson, visited Mrs. King's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Auty McClain, Saturday night. Mr. McClain and daughter Bernice joined them Sunday morning on a trip to Dingus, where they ate dinner with Mrs. King's sister, Mrs. Ova Maxey, and family. There was chicken and everything good that can be found only on a farmer's table.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Belcher and family of Floyd county and Buster Oney and sister of White Oak were pleasant callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Lykins and family Sunday.

Rev. Eli Williams of Ashland is expected to be in town Saturday and will fill the pulpit in the Baptist church Saturday night, Sunday morning, and Sunday night.

Rev. J. D. Conley of Falcon is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Roscoe Brong.
